Rianna Chugani is part of the sales team at Forrester Hong Kong Limited. She has been with Forrester since January 2018. Since 2013, she has formally been in sales and business development roles at global corporations including Thomson Reuters, Hogan Lovells and Forrester. She has managed teams in HK and Asia Pacific.

Rianna has also practiced as an Intellectual Property lawyer with Bird & Bird. Her training as a lawyer and a mediator means she respects and adheres to the highest standards of confidentiality and ethical standards. She is curious and sees collaboration and win-win as an imperative for progression.

Rianna has worked with different cultures both from her experience as a corporate professional and as a coach. She has experience working in complex environments, managing up and her direct reports. In one of her roles as a Training Manager, she was tasked with bringing more collaboration, connection and alignment with regards to the regional team of trainers to support better customer experience and retention. She took the opportunity to understand, coach and align the team to their personal vision and purpose. The team remained intact when she moved from the organization.

Since 2005, Rianna has also been an entrepreneur. She started new business lines and businesses. She owned a company in HK that designed computer bags for the US market, she owned a beauty spa and French confectionery business in HK. She is presently the Co-Founder of Intention Coaching Limited.

Rianna is a learner, passionate and resilient whether it's with her businesses, her quest for making a difference, her family, her personal development to be the best version of herself and as a coach. She started her coaching journey for her own personal development at a difficult time in her life in 2006 first by seeking out a coach and then starting her journey to make that difference to women entrepreneurs like herself in 2013 by training as a business coach with EMyth. The journey of developing as a Coach has continued until today. She has coached clients from Africa, USA, India, Europe and HK. Her vision is to humanize organizations where employees can thrive, aligned with their purpose. She wants to see team coaching grow within companies. She is also an advocate for supporting women entrepreneurs succeed and scale up and for women who are in transition whether within corporations or those who want to start their businesses, to choose powerfully from purpose and thrive.

She has been part of The Women's Foundation since 2014, a Lean-in Guru and is currently a mentor with HK Mompreneurs.

Outside of coaching, she enjoys reading, dancing, going for walks, meditation, spending time with her family and connecting with her friends.
